DOCTOR KENNEDY'S ALIBI.

Strong Evidence for the Alleged

Slaver of Dolly Reynolds,

Strong Evidence for the Alleged Slayer of Dolly Reynolds.

New York, June 19.—To-day marked the beginning of the sixth week of the trial of Doctor Sampel J. Kennedy on the charge of murdering Emeline Reynolds in the Grand Hotel on the night of August 15-16 1898. Alfred Wagner, a cab driver at St. George, Staten Island, was the first witness to-day. He testified that on the night of August 15. Doctor Kennedy was a passenger on the ferry-boat wharved at St. George at 12:45 a. m. Doctor Kennedy, who was intoxicated, asked the witness how much he would charge to drive him to New Dorp, and he said $5. Doctor Kennedy then walked toward a trolley car. The defendant, the witness said, wore a dark suit and a black derby hat.

The prosecution sought to imply bad character in the cross-examination of this witness. The witness denied that the defense had offered him anything beyond his expenses for his affidavit.

William J. Kennedy, train dispatcher for the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company, who was a witness for the State at the last trail, was called for the defense to-day. He examined Doctor Kennedy's commutation-book and said that the last train for which the August 15 ticket would have been good would have been that connecting with the 12:25 ferry-boat. If the person took the 2:10 boat the ticket chopper would have taken the ferry ticket for the 18th. Doctor Kennedy's commutation-book contained the tickets for the 18th. Thomas J. Fenley, a Staten Island hackman, said he had known Doctor Kennedy asked "How much." and replied "No, you don't," when told it would cost 5 for a cab.

Edward Burns, a Staten Island truck farmer, testified that he met Doctor Kennedy at about 2 a. m., or possibly ten minutes earlier, on August 16, on the road to New Dorp, as he stopped to water his horses at a cross roads about two and one-half miles from New Dorp and three miles from his own home. He said: Doctor Kennedy offered him a dollar to take him to New Dorp, but he refused. Adjourned.

TRAMP DOG RIDES ON THE TRUCKS.

Canine Seen at Edwardsville Selects Perilous Position for His Travels.

Somewhere in Illinois there is a dog of ow degree, but interesting habits, who is going after the record of "Jack," the railroad dog. The animal has acquired a taste for traveling on trains, but, unlike the departed Jack, he does not travel in style.

but beats his way. The dog came into Edwardsville from Alion yesterday afternoon on a freight train. In most freight cars there is a heavy crosstimber or steel transom under each end. timber or steel transom under each end, which rests upon a similar piece on the truck. Between the two there is a space of eight inches near the ends where the blocks are attached. It is in this space that the dog rides. When the Terminal cut off a string in the lower Wabash yards the dog hopped out and secreted himself, like a true "hobo," in the same place under one of the cars on the Wabash local freight. Car greasers saw him and tried to built aim out, but it was impossible to dislosige him, and when the train pulled out the dog went along.

The trainmen watched the animal's maneuvers, and saw him emerge at Brooklyan and look around. Evidently the region did not suit bim, for he hastened back and took up his position, with front feet firmly clasped over the edge of the bolster. At Venice he alighted, scurried across the yards and under a Chicago and Alton freight which was just pulling out for the north. The men saw him pull himself up on to one of the trucks, and cheered as he made the jump successfully. Then the train disappeared and the trainmen wondered what the history of the strainse animal was and hew long it would be until the inevitable accident would curtail its sport. The trainmen watched the animal's ma

TALKS OF IOWA CAMPAIGN.

Editor Frush of Knoxville Hopes for Split in Republican Party.

Editor Frank M. Frush of the Marion County Reporter at Knoxville, Ia., was it Alten yesterday. He talked interestingly on the gubernatorial contest now being on the gubernatorial contest now being waged in his State. In his opinion, the great Republican machine that for years has held the State in complete control, is near dissolution. The potent factor in breaking it up will be Judge A. B. Cummings of Des Moines, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor.

for the Republican nomination for development.

"Judge Cummings is one of the brainy men of our State," said Editor Frush, "and his fight against the machine is almost without parallel. The State, nominally, is Republican by a majority of 90,000, and we bemocrats this year are much interested in the progress of the fight. Minister Conger's decision to return to Pekin at once was only reached after he had seen that Cummings would beat him out for the nomination. The Republican machine in lowa is backel by three or four of the great railroad corporations. Sid Foster and Trewin, both of Des Moines, and Editor Cy Perkins of Cedar Rapids, are all prominently spoken of as machine candidates for the nomination."

—The Upper Allon Village Council has adopted an ordinance providing that all the sidewalks in the village be built by the adjacent property owners. No appropriation has been made for the construction of new walks, and after the present ones have been repaired the property owners will be required to build new ones. An ordinance was also passed permitting the construction of a brick walk on Garden and Manbing streets along the parts recently pared.

—Eugene trouch, a negro, and another prisoner, known as "Hucker" Burns, had a fight in the Alton City Jail late Sunday night. The trouble was the result of some one passing in a bottle of whicky to Burns, who, after imbining freely, challenged the immates to a light. The negro accepted the challenge and the two started to pominel each other. The other prisoners set up a how, which attracted the attention of the police, but before the two men could be separated the officer had to beat them almost into insensibility with their clubs.

The charge against Mrs. Pfeiffer is that three trees are obstructing the sidewalk in front of her house. The trees are described as being about fifty feet high and about five feet in circumference. The ordinances forbid obstructions of streets, alleys and public places. This is the first case in which trees have been classed as obstructions on the sidewalks.

Mayor Wells issued a statement a month ato, revoking all permits to obstruct sidewalks, streets, alleys and public places with signs, vendors' booths and sundry other appliances and contrivances, and City Attorney Taylor followed by issuing 500 summonses to violators of section 1185. The understanding was that proceedings would be abandoned if the obstructions would be removed by June 10.

Many of the signs and obstructions had disappeared up to last night, but a glance along the principal streets showed that many are still in their former locations. The City Attorney and his assistants will prosecute all violators of the ordinance after to-day. The police will report obstructions to headquarters.

Property Owners Object to Cars Running on Bacon Street.

Running on Bacon Street.

The Lindell Real Estate Company filed suit yesterday against the United Railways Company, the St. Louis Transit Company and the city to restrain the running of cars on Bacon street from Sullivan avenue to the Natural Bridge road.

The property abutting Bacon street at the point was part of the Lindell estate and the street, it is alleged, is a private street. It is averred that the authority under which the cars were run expired with the death of Jemima Lindell, widow of Jesse G. Lindell, February 21, 1896.

Judge Douglas ordered the defendants to show cause June B why the prayer should not be granted.

They were all discharged about two months ago and have scattered far and wide. That a well-planned and deliberately executed murder of the Guldensuppe kind has been committed there seems to be little doubt, but whether it was in Lowell, Boston or in any of the surrounding places, from which a team could be driven to this lonely spot, the police have been unable to determine.

TRI-CITIES.

CHANGED HIS MIND ABOUT DYING. William Hall Leaped Into the River and Then Called for Help.

william Hall, a negro, 37 years old, and for three weeks a resident of Venice, yesterday morning threatened suicide, because of his inability to get work, and in the presence of several persons leaped from the ferry landing into the river. When Hall struck the chilly water his anxiety to die was considerably lessened.

After making a heroic effort to swim to the bank he began to call for help, and gladly held to a rope thrown to him from the ferry-boat. Dripping with water, Hall wits dragged ashore, and in a few minutes was as well as ever. The would-be suicide was taken aboard the ferry and went to St. Louis.

City officials and subordinates, who have received no salary since March 1, anticipate that the bill will, have been passed and signed by the Mayor by June 28, or by June 20 at the latest. The committees will try to reach an understanding before the substance of the bill is reported to the City Council. As the real difficulty over the temporary bill was the plea of the House committee that it had been ignored by the Council committee, it is now thought that concerted action between the committees will insure passage of the general bill.
